STUDENTS STAGE ANTI-RED STRIKE

STUDENTS DESTROY OFFICE - Chosun Ilbo, 11 Jan 50

According to a reliable report received by the South Korea Ministry of National Defense, recently there were two student-incited anti-Communist incidents in North Korea.

In the middle of December 1949, the Office of Internal Affairs in Kangso, Pyongan Namdo, was completely destroyed by a mysterious fire. The Communist authorities immediately arrested 200 students of Chongjin Junior High School in Kangso.

Earlier, at the end of November 1949, the students of Siny'o Senior High School, in Hamkyong Namdo, staged an anti-Communist strike at the school, and 15 leaders were arrested at the scene.

NORTH KOREANS CONTRIBUTE MONEY TO SOUTH KOREA -- Kyung Hyang Sinmun, 11 Jan 50

According to an announcement by the South Korea Office of Public Information on 10 January, many people in North Korea have contributed money to South Korea's plane-purchase fund-collection campaign. These donations are brought into South Korea by friends.

Recently, North Korea launched a similar campaign, only in this case compulsory, to collect money to purchase airplanes and tanks. At the beginning the campaign was planned on a voluntary basis. When the authorities discovered that no response came from the people, they made it compulsory, and collected 20 percent of the workers' daily wages [period not designated] and a flat 50,000 won from each middle-class person. The Communists issued an official notice regarding the compulsory contribution, treating it in the same category as taxes. Those who were uncooperative were classed as reactionaries under the law. All types of intimidation were employed to collect the money.
